To Quote Ford Myers, the renown career coach ...“One of the keys to managing your career effectively is to build and maintain a strong and varied network.”

Certainly, when you are looking for a job, you need to network. Roughly 80% of the people who get hired are “referred” into an organization. It is also true that effective hiring managers need a strong network they can rely on to introduce them to their next great hire. This Hire One event is being built for employers (Managers and Recruiters) to have an opportunity to meet professionals from various careers (Energy, Information Technology, Healthcare, Financial Services, Manufacturing, Banking and others) who are looking for a job. The purpose of this Main event is to build relationships and a network of associates. This is a business meeting, not a job fair. The meeting will include two 10 minute employer testimonials with the rest of the time for connecting.
